

Long central fountain in reclaimed weathered stones

This central fountain in reclaimed old stones nicely worn and weathered by time is a unique water feature full of yesteryear's rustic charm. It presents a central column carved with chamfers and a capital topped by a small stone ball. The 2 old wrought iron water spouts allow the water to pour down in each trough positioned on either side. These 2 long and narrow basins are reclaimed stone troughs, each fitted with a pair of metallic bucket rest bars and old metal hooks.
