

Original antique stone trough with gargoyle

This long rectangular massive trough in massive hard limestone beautifully worn and weathered by time is a one-of-the-kind item full of yesteryear's rustic charm. Its originality comes from its long stone gargoyle (= spillway) sculpted in the mass which is located in the continuity of the trough and allows the water to flow out. The stone bears a beautiful rough stone appearance. Imagine it diverted into a sustainable and ecological planter or flower box.
